

Jackson's Island — where Huck and Jim stay.
The Cave — where they hide and keep their supplies.
Mississippi River — the river surrounding the island.
Huck and Jim's Canoe — their means of transportation.
Sandy Beach — a shoreline of the island.
The Floating House — the house they discover after the storm.
The Mainland (near town) — where people live.

3. A Moment Frozen in Time

—----------

Huck and Jim discover a floating house on the Mississippi River after a storm and explore it to find useful supplies. This moment is important because they find things that may help them survive and strengthen their friendship as they face challenges together.

4. A diary entry

Diary Entry

—----------

Today was a strange and frightening day. Jim and I explored a floating house and found some useful things inside. We also saw a dead man, but Jim did not let me look at his face. Later, I played a trick on Jim with a dead snake, and he got bitten by another snake. I felt terrible about what happened. I have learned that I should think before doing something foolish.

Huck

5. Predict The next chapter

I predict that Huck and Jim will leave Jackson’s Island and continue their journey down the Mississippi River. They may face new dangers while trying to stay safe. In Chapter 10, Huck learns that people are searching for Jim on the island. This is a clue that staying there is becoming dangerous, so they will probably need to find another hiding place.
